TO LEARN TAROT GUIDE

Disclaimers and Presuppositions

1. Everything I say is BS; my belief system. Everyone has a BS because we are each THE FOOL (Card 0).
2. Anything experienced is an object within the subject of consciousness, and can be changed, created, or destroyed.
3. Tarot is an Art. Krishnamurti's definition of art is "putting things where they belong". We are embarking on a contemplative wardenship of reality.
4. No conclusions, only questions and choice. Tarot is just an IPOV.
5. One way to understand something larger than "you" is through a map or model. Tarot is a map or model, both for divination and for self-inquiry.
6. You don't have to understand/memorize/know everything I teach in one class. These classes are designed to be with you for the rest of your life. Take your time learning and enjoy the ride!
7. Tarot is something you build up inside you. Each person's tarot is different! This approach will build your understanding of Tarot based on your own life experiences, personal reflections, and relationships between ideas you develop.
8. You will get out what you put in. Nothing worth doing is easy, but it can be done with ease. Enjoy the process and do the homework. If you want Tarot to be a deep practice, go deep.
9. Tarot is a choose-your-own-adventure game.
10. Contemplation is memorization, play with the ideas in your mind before sleep, and in in random moments. (A great practice for when you're caught in uninteresting conversations).

What is Tarot?

- 78 memes of consciousness
- A psycho-spiritual-historical amalgamation of symbols
- Probably not a spellbook from Ancient Egypt (but maybe ...)
- Definitely a spiritual technology with alchemical, hermetic, kabbalistic, astrological, and magical/esoteric influences
- A method of divination, and spiritual unfoldment
- Definitely the gateway drug into mysticism

THE PHILOSOPHY

Consciousness is where everything shows up. Even the astral/supernatural/psychic/subtle shows up in consciousness, which is the fool, but more deeply, the back of the card. This consciousness is the card-stock, from which everything appears. This is the same consciousness everyone is experiencing. If you don't know or believe this, use it as a darsana, a "view", or philosophy/paradigm for your readings. It will help.

Regardless of what information we are getting in a reading, whether it be through time, space, or even other dimensions, it is experienced in consciousness in the present moment. In the same way as every card is a name, form, function, or phase of the fool, so every divination is either a name, form, or function of pure awareness. Being in awareness allows us to experience and know more about what is happening. Being in awareness is simply a choice.

This present moment holds the imprints from the "past", the seeds of the "future", and the patterns of karma running the show. It is from this present moment that we interpret meaning through time, space, or dimension.

The cards are doorways into the subtle world (thoughts, feelings, emotions, energies, etc) that may correlate with physical results.

Don't invalidate your experiences. Don't gaslight yourself!

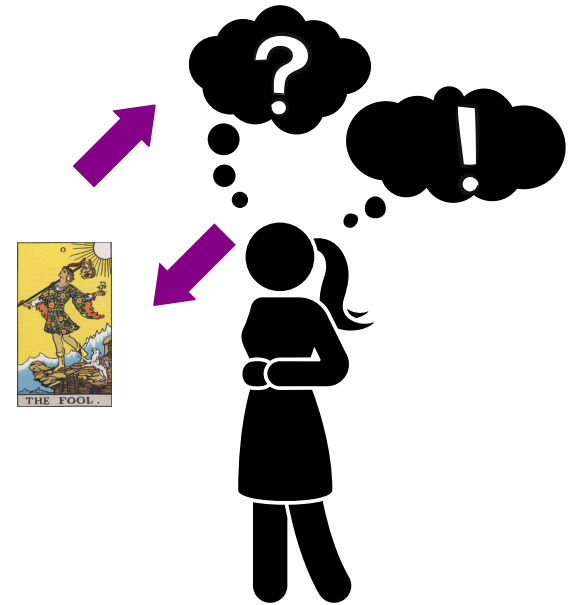

A Nonsuperstitious, Slightly Nondual, and Certainly Nonsectarian Breakdown of the Tarot Reading Process

Reading for Yourself:

A subject (reader) becomes aware of objects (divination) within itself (reader) through symbolic medium (cards).

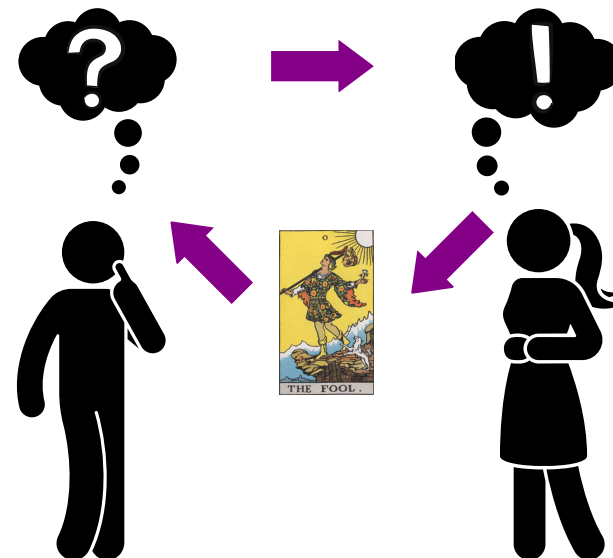

The objects of divination include any name, form, or function experienced in the conscious or unconscious awareness of the subject.

Reading for Others:

A subject (reader) becomes aware of objects (divination) within another subject (querent) through symbolic medium (cards).

Both subjects are the same:
consciousness

A Nonsuperstitious, Slightly Nondual, and Certainly Nonsectarian Breakdown of the Tarot Mysticism Process

A subject (reader) becomes aware of itself through symbolic medium (cards).

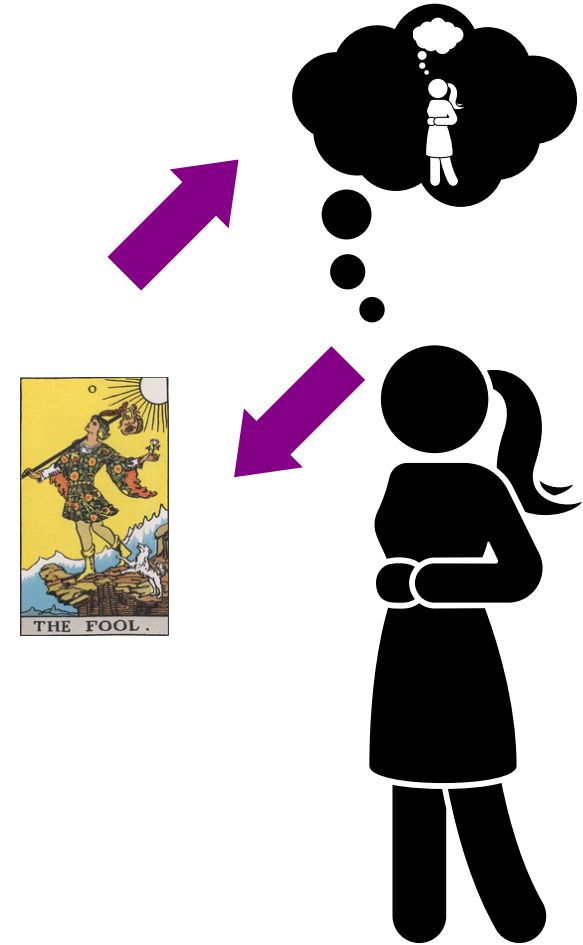

This creates an infinite loop. The tarot shows the infinite loops in 3 cycles. The main one is the fool to the world. The world is the fool realized, which, in its revelation, returns to complete nothingness/ignorance, back to the fool, and projects itself outward into the magician and the process starts again.

The tarot illustrates hermetic philosophy, which is holographic. This means that the same process of creation illustrated by the whole tarot deck is illustrated in each card, any possibly in each symbol.

We, ourselves, are a creative process. We are a complex pattern of neural choreography, physical integration and disintegration, and various autonomic processes.

We also create our worlds (energetically, psychologically, etc). The tarot reflects how we are creating our worlds. The important thing to remember is that you (and your client) are a creator.

Underlying all creation is the "is"ness. The "IS"ness of the universe is the space between the cards. The fool IS, only because the fool BECOMES the magician. It is the mentation of the magician, which is consciousness focusing itself, that reveals the latent existence of the fool, pure consciousness. And, it is the focusing of consciousness from which mutually arises the high priestess as the subconsciousness. It is that dichotomy which allows the dance of imagination, the empress, to move and grove between the conscious and the subconscious through deduction and the creation of an inner world. Contemplating the mutually arising nature of the cards, and you, can lead to some of the highest mystical teachings.

Tarot is a symbolic set of folders for information. That's it. You will fill it for two major functions.

1. Divination

You fill it with meaning to get to know your circumstantial self, in time, in space, in relationship to others, in name, form, and function

2. Mysticism:

You fill it with meaning to get to know your quintessential Self, the ultimate truth of you and your experience.

Let's jump in!

- 1) Physical Senses: what do you see? (Nephesh)
- 2) Intellectual Senses: What do you think about the card? (Ruach)

HOMEWORK! THE TAROT JOURNAL

Leave two sections for each card.

All of your information about the card: fill this first with your reflections on the questions/prompts that follow.

These questions can be approached as philosophically or mundanely as you choose. They are designed in a specific way to lay the foundation for more advanced study.

I recommend doing this FIRST before looking at the divinatory meanings.

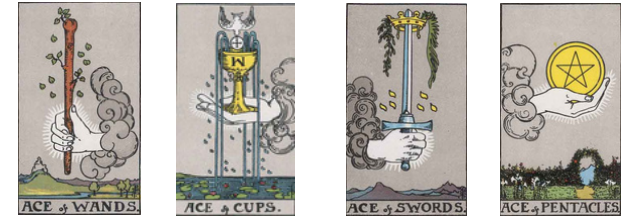

Divinatory meanings! These will be deduced from the left side. They will grow and change over time. I have provided examples of divinatory meanings in the following pages. You can copy as much of those meanings as you would like.

The sources of some of those meanings include:
Arthur Edward Waite,
Aleister Crowley, Rachel
Pollack, and myself.

The Majors

The major arcana illustrate archetypal patterns in the human condition. They can show the creation of a world, the universe, or even a cup of coffee. They may also hint at a path to enlightenment. Most importantly, they are the underlying patterns that shift reality, and non reality, to create the results we see in the minor arcana.

To learn about the major arcana and more detail on the minor arcana, court cards, tarot methods, and practical application, you'll want to download the full Fastest Way to Learn Tarot Textbook (120+ pages) available in the Tarot Divination Course at www.tarotmysticismacademy.com.
